Course description

The ability to communicate effectively in English is a critical skill in today's connected, multicultural world.

Particularly for educators, fluency in English facilitates the engagement with students in multilingual and multicultural classrooms, and on a personal level allows the educator to engage in global professional networks, access international training, and effectively participate in collaborative international projects.

This course is designed to help you make the first steps in effective communication in the English language, both inside and outside the classroom, with a strong focus on vocabulary and language useful to educators.

Targeted at educators at a beginner's level of English, the course seeks to equip educators with the confidence and language to start feeling comfortable in their use of English, particularly inside a classroom or when dealing with situations that may arise in their professional work.

Rather than focusing on grammar or traditional approaches to English language teaching, this course seeks to offer a much more focused professional development experience for all educators, with the clear goal of improving communication clarity and confidence across reading, writing, and speaking skills.

This course will help you start using English to communicate effectively with students, colleagues, or international partners.

Please note: This course is designed for beginner-level learners (A1); other levels should attend an appropriate version of this course.

Learning outcomes

The course will help participants to:

- Communicate in English for classroom management, instruction, and professional interactions;
- Create their vocabulary related to teaching, learning, and classroom activities;
- Learn how to practice listening and speaking skills through exercises and role-playing in educational settings;
- Develop clear and professional writing skills for emails, lesson instructions, and reports;
- Use effective communication strategies to engage students and facilitate discussions;
- Apply their enhanced English skills in real-world teaching scenarios with greater fluency and confidence.
